Wet fest is hot item

By TIM OMARZU
Press Staff Writer

The T-shirt for this year's Frog Island Music Festival shows a joyful frog wearing sunglasses and dancing beneath a shining sun.

That's partly right. There was plenty of joyful dancing at three-day festival of jazz, blues, zydeco, African, Cajun, gospel, Latin and Caribbean music.

But with intermittent rains Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the revelers were mainly kicking up their heels on wet grass and mud.

Rain is nothing new at Frog Island. This is the fifth year in a row it's rained during at least one day of the festival.

"This festival is essentially a drought solver," said Thayrone, a WEMU-FM disc jockey and Frog Island Music Festival master of ceremonies. "We should license this festival and take it to drought-stricken areas."

"But the music's been fantastic,"

Big changes anticipated today at General Motors

DETROIT (AP) — The most significant personnel changes at the General Motors Corp. since outside directors deposed top managers and installed Jack Smith as president in 1992 are expected today when GM's board meets in New York.

Richard Wagoner Jr., the 41-year-old chief financial officer and head of worldwide purchasing, is likely to be elevated to the No. 2 job in the world's largest industrial corporation. As president of North American operations, he would run GM's largest unit, responsible for its domestic vehicle business and nearly 80 percent of its SUMPTER TWP. — After a recent interruption of a religious service, one Sumpter man is determined to set the record straight about his faith.

Michael Poe, 36, practices a religion that has gotten a bad rap for the past several centuries. He is a witch.

"Just because it's different doesn't mean we're doing something sinister or illegal," Poe said. "It's just as valid, it's just as holy, it's just as sacred."

On the evening of June 11, however, members of Poe's coven arrived at his home for a religious service, when a group of boys started shouting and taunting "Lucifer," because they thought the ceremony was satanic. Poe said his friends were insulted.

"They shouldn't have to take that kind of stuff," Poe said. "This is their religion," Poe said. "It's sacred and special to them."

Poe said one of the coven members later saw two boys watching the ceremony from behind a shed in Poe's yard. Poe did not see what happened, but the coven member said he snuck up on the boys and tapped them on their backs. The youths took off running.

Soon afterward three Sumpter Township Police Department officers responded to a report that four adults were running around with swords and chasing children.

The police report states the officers went into the tent and removed four double-edged knives and one double-edged sword. Beverly Poe, Michael Poe's wife, said the swords were used in their Wiccan religious ceremony and the only time the sword was outside the tent was when one of the members walked around to bless the area, the report said.

Michael Poe said the knives and swords are used symbolically and for religious reasons they would not use the swords to physically harm anyone.

"If we get blood on them, we've desecrated them," Poe said.

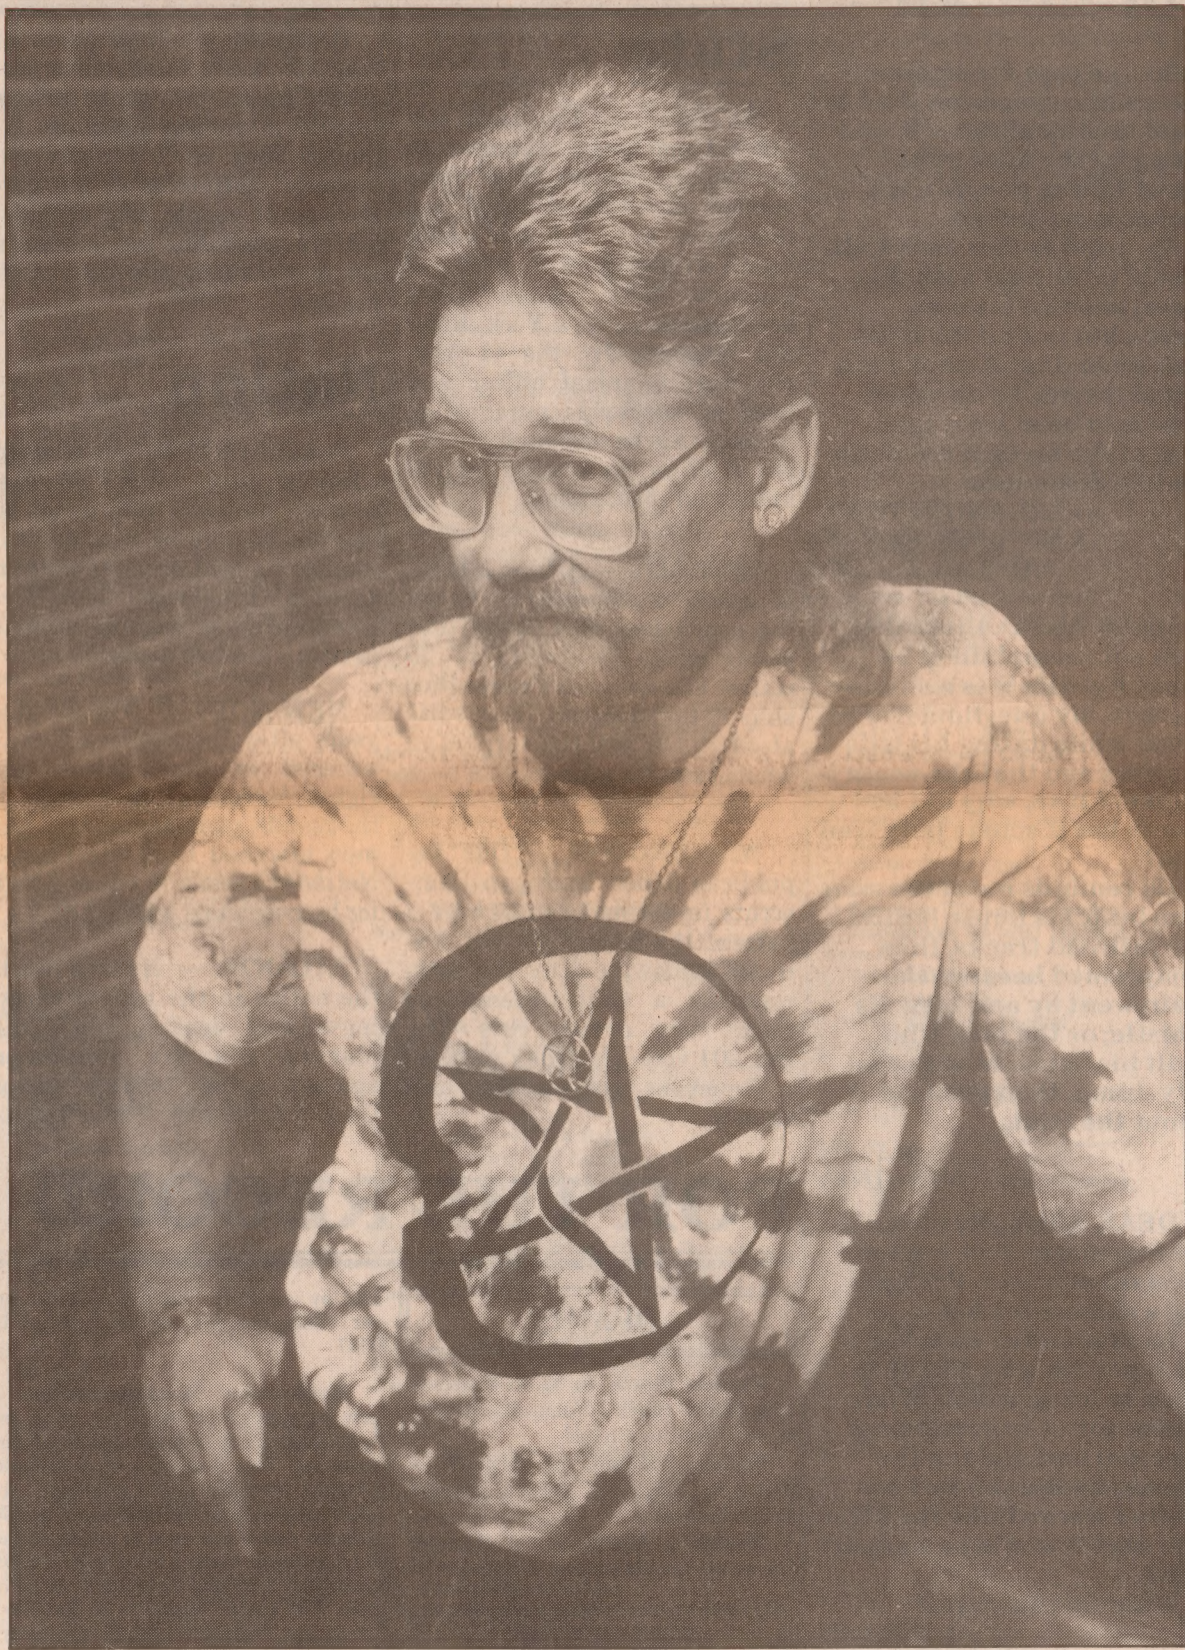

Michael Poe said the altar area was desecrated that night as well. He said one of the officers didn't take the service seriously, took incense out of its holder and set it on the wooden altar. Poe asked if it could be moved to avoid a fire, so the officer put it out in consecrated water.

He compared the disruption to people finding their homes ransacked or churches spray painted.

"It's something special to you that's been violated," he said.

When the officer desecrated the altar, Poe said, several Cyclist's body is found

SUPERIOR TWP. — The body and wrecked motorcycle of a 62-year-old man missing since Tuesday was found in a creek Sunday afternoon by his friends.

The body of Max Lee Geiger of New Hudson was lying in a creek that runs under Dixboro Road about a quarter mile north of Warren Road.

Geiger's body was discovered at about 1:45 p.m. by friends that were out looking for him, said Capt. Tim Winters of the Superior Township Fire Department.

Geiger was driving his motorcycle north on Dixboro Road at about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday when he missed a curve, went off the right side of the road and landed in the creek, according to a Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department report.

Man killed in accident

SALEM TWP. — A 21-year-old Canton Township was killed around 5:15 p.m. Sunday when his motorcycle hit a car that pulled out of a driveway near the intersection of North Territorial Road and Napier Road.

Christopher Michael Kitchen was driving his motorcycle east on North Territorial when a car driven by a 25-year-old Canton woman pulled into his path, according to a Michigan State Police report.

Kitchen was pronounced dead at the scene due to massive head and internal injuries. The car's driver had two small children with her. Neither she nor the children were injured in the crash.

More seniors seek aid from Alcoholics Anonymous

DETROIT (AP) — Organizers of area Alcoholics Anonymous programs have seen more senior citizens attending meetings, although they can't explain the increase.

Kenneth runs an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting at Detroit Mercy Hospital every Friday. During the last few years, he has seen more senior citizens at his meetings.

"We have a lot more retirees," said Kenneth, who, like most AA members, uses only his first name. "A lot more of them are going through treatment."

Interim official sizing up challenge

By KAREN DUGAS
Press Staff Writer

BELLEVILLE — Like anyone acclimating themselves to a new job, Reid Charles is getting used to his first week as Belleville's interim city manager. After the suicide of City Manager Jeffrey Przygocki, Charles said he wants to get things back to normal for the city.

"Right now the first thing is to basically get control of the operations," Charles said. "We need to get things back on course."

He said in addition to the day-to-day tasks, he wants to keep up with the city projects so Belleville doesn't lose what Przygocki worked to gain.

"From what I can ascertain, Jeff was coordinating many of the projects," Charles said.

Charles said he wants to create a stable environment for the permanent city manager that will eventually take over.

He said he doesn't know if he intends to be a candidate for the permanent position.

"This is not a permanent job at this time," Charles said. "It represents a significant cut in salary for me."

"I don't know what will happen. I'm just going to take it one day at a time."

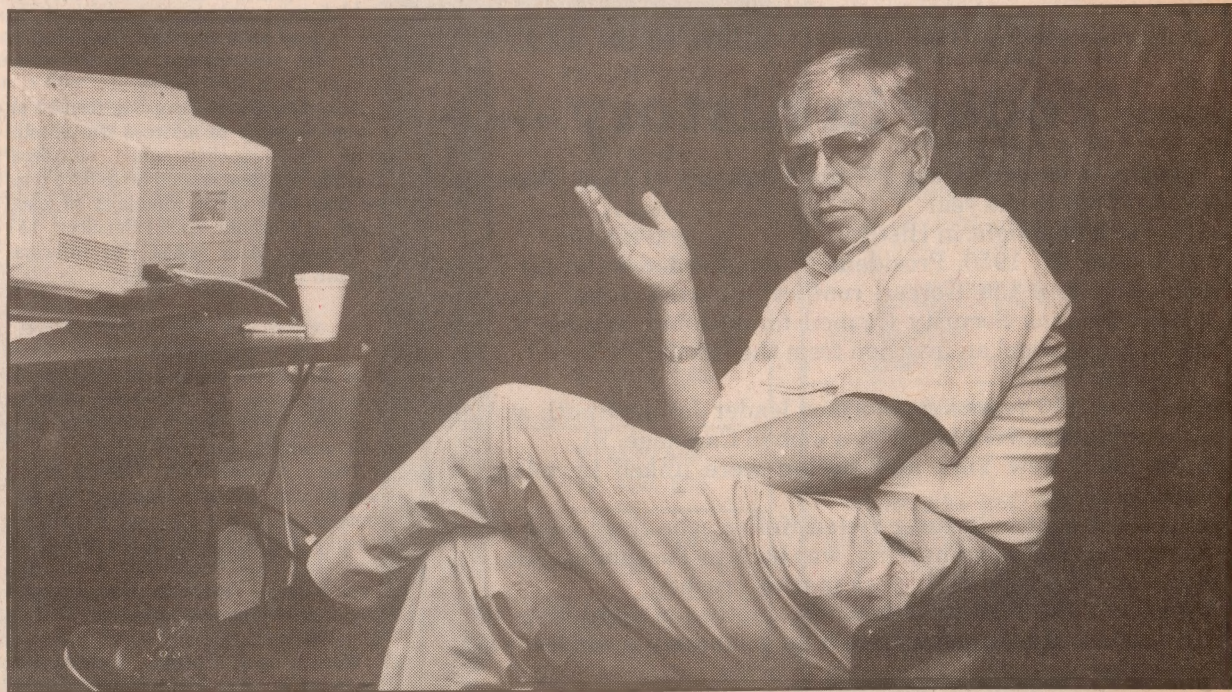

Charles' contract runs out Dec. 16 and specifies $40,000 a year pro-rated per week, yielding a salary cut of more than $20,000.

Charles took the Belleville position June 16 after Belleville officials called him about the job.

"Very simply, I needed the work," Charles said.

Mayor Glenn Silvenis said the city got Charles' name from

Readers say secondhand smoker is full of hot air

DEAR ABBY: This is my first letter to you, but your reply to "Secondhand Smoker" really had smoke coming out of my ears!

In his letter, "Secondhand Smoker" stated that he had quit chain-smoking two years before he met his wife. Obviously, she must have been smoking at the time. If her smoking was so offensive to him, why did he marry her? If he didn't tell her before their wedding that he didn't want smoking in their home, he has no right to change the rules now. After all, he accepted her for better or worse, knowing that she was a smoker.

The only real option he has now is to live with it, or leave. And if he chooses to leave, then she should sue him for everything he has for breach of contract! Sign me

... SMOKERS HAVE RIGHTS, TOO, VIRGINIA CITY, NEV.

DEAR SMOKERS, ETC.: Meet Leland Moody, who backs you up all the way:

DEAR ABBY: Like you, I have no affection for secondhand smoke. Also, like you, I have no affection for hysterical or deliberate falsehoods, such as the EPA's report that secondhand tobacco smoke is a Class A carcinogen.

In a recent column, Robert Scheer (L.A. Times) describes in chilling detail how the EPA concocted its conclusion.

I'm sure you do not want to be a party to this deception, especially since so many people seek your advice on such matters. The truth is, secondhand smoke may be a public nuisance, but it is hardly a deadly killer.

Quoting Scheer, "One can make the case for smoke-free public spaces on the basis of civility alone, without piling on the false guilt about killing people with secondhand smoke."

My point is that each individual must deal with this annoyance on his own terms, but not on the basis that secondhand smoke is a lethal threat. To do otherwise is to be at least ignorant of the facts, if not deliberately dishonest.

— LELAND MOODY, A NON-SMOKER IN NIPOMO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: About that man who complained because his wife was a chain-smoker, my question: Did he know while dating his wife 16 years ago that she was a smoker? If so, why did he marry her if smoke bothered him?

He reminds me of the man who built his house beside the railroad tracks, then complained because the train went by and blew its whistle; or the man who built his house next to the city dump, then groused about the stink.

— M.P. IN VIRGINIA

DEAR ABBY: My sister is getting married in August. As maid of honor, I'm hosting a shower for her.

I had planned on asking each person who will be invited to bring a dish of her choice (or even something specific) and making the shower "potluck." But my mother doesn't like the idea. She says it would be in poor taste.

What do you think?
— CINDY IN WEST ALLIS, WIS.

DEAR CINDY: Local customs may vary, but I'll cast my vote with your mother. If your budget is tight, give the shower in the mid-afternoon — and serve tea, sandwiches, an assortment of cookies and cake. Perhaps your mother would assist you in some of the preparations. A shower requires guests to bring a gift for the bride (or couple), but to ask guests to provide refreshments is too much!

Right off the top, I'll say congratulations to the many people who worked to see the Harriet Commerce Center move from a dream to a reality.

And of course, to the Rev. S.L. Roberson of the Metropolitan Memorial Baptist Church, whose dream it was to begin with.

The center's success was evident by the more than 150 people who showed up Saturday morning during the dedication ceremony.

So again, congratulations to all.

One of the 10 tenants of the Harriet Commerce Center is the Ypsilanti-Willow Run Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Branch members turned out in force to support the center, then made their way to their branch office to mark its dedication.

The NAACP office is up and running — has been for weeks in fact — but branch members who spend their time volunteering in the office could sure use a microwave oven, computers and other office equipment to make their lives easier.

The branch also needed a small refrigerator but just as branch Vice President Shirley Brown and I were discussing this, Washtenaw County Commissioner Mary Egnor-Patterson and Jim Patterson offered just what they needed.

Talk about being in the right place at the right time! If you have an item you are interested in donating to the branch, call 480-9654.

Just a reminder that if you are not a registered voter, or need to update your voter's registration, the last day to do so before the August primary election is July 5 and that's just a week away.

Ypsilanti residents can take part in public voter registration from 5:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ypsilanti District Library, 229 W. Michigan Ave.

In other goings-on at the library, the annual summer reading program is under way.

Register at the Ypsilanti District Library-Downtown, the Peters and Roundtree branches or at the Bookmobile.

All participants receive incentive prizes and are eligible for lots of other great prizes donated by businesses.

Age-appropriate categories include "listeners" for younger children who can have books read to them. Young adults can join the Camp Read program by entering a Trivia Contest in July.

For information, call the YDL-Downtown Youth Department at 482-4110.

Those of you who attended this year's Frog Island Music Festival are sure to have enjoyed it as much as I did. A little rain never hurt a frog besides aren't lily pads in the water anyway?

Woman's 'career' is helping others

By JO COLLINS MATHIS
Press Lifestyle Editor

MILAN — Irma Hermann Ward was a career woman when she was first married. But a request of her husband ultimately led to a life of service more varied and fulfilling than the career she might have kept for money.

"My husband said he would prefer that I work on a volunteer basis," Ward said. "He said, 'We'll never be rich. But we'll have enough. I can't be free to do many of these things that I believe in, but I can leave you free to do them.'"

And do them, she has. In fact, for nearly 50 years Ward has been an active volunteer in the Milan community. At times, she donated as many hours as if she had been employed full time.

She doesn't miss the money she might have made.

"There have been much greater rewards," she said. "I've had the opportunity to make a difference even if it's very small in someone's life ... It's been my life's work."

While many people become involved in youth activities when their own children get involved, Ward and her husband, Larry, a retired Ford Motor Co. engineer, have worked for youth organizations, yet have no children of their own.

The Wards have had three foreign exchange students live with them, have served as leaders in Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and went along with youths on church camping trips.

She was a Huron Valley Girl Scout Council board member and on the Milan Area Schools' Key Committee, and has worked on millage campaigns. Ward was also a volunteer for two years in the elementary schools' special education program.

"All of us are in a real sense godparents to every child who is born, not just the immediate family," she said. "Children and youth have given to me far more than I've given to them in the delight of sharing with them, the enrichment of my own experience by the insights they give so spontaneously, their enthusiasm for life, their interest and curiosity about everything."

She's been very active in her church ever since she joined soon after moving to Milan, and has the distinction of being the first female chairman of the church board.

She's also been a Church Women United board member. She was the first president of the Milan Area Church Women United, and is still active in that organization.

"Irma is a wonderful, fascinating person," said Penny Swix, secretary and Christian education chairwoman at Marble Memorial United Methodist Church. "She will do anything for anyone. She teaches Sunday school class here. When our minister's gone, she preaches for him. She does funerals. She's there for anyone who needs her. Everyone here at the church just thinks she's wonderful."

VOLUNTEER OF THE WEEK

Born and raised in Los Angeles, Ward was working in Christian ministry when she moved to Milan in 1945. She started volunteering right away, following the example her mother had set when she was growing up.

As a city girl, Ward had no intention of staying in Milan when she first moved there. Now she's glad she did.

"I've been very happy here," she said. "This is a wonderful community and has wonderful people in it. For so many years I was in Detroit at least twice a week for board meetings and I had as much city as I needed."

The first organization she joined was the Milan Music Club, OF which she has been a member FOR nearly 50 years. She is also a 46-year member of the Milan's Woman's Club, a federated community service group dedicated to enriching the community's cultural life.

She is on call in the office of Aid in Milan and has worked for several years at Aid in Milan's thrift store, The Umbrella Shop.

Through the years, she's entertained university students from dozens of countries and is a past president of the Ecumenical Association for International Students at the University of Michigan.

She's a founding member and past president of the Milan Area Council on Aging, which surveys, evaluates and works toward securing those opportunities of benefit for older adults. And she's helped with the Washtenaw United Way's fund-raising campaigns.

She and her husband, who once was named Milan's Citizen of the Year, were co-chairs of an ecumenical group which provided resettlement in Milan for two Cambodian families escaping their war-torn nation.

Although the families have since moved to California to escape the cold winters, they continue to stay in touch with the Wards.

Along with Dale Heath of Milan, Ward recently was given the 1994 Community Service Award by the Milan Kiwanis Club.

"When you've lived a long time, you've done a lot of things," she said with a laugh. "I guess I do volunteer more than some people, but it's just that if you live longer, you have more opportunities."

Ward worked for nearly 30 years as contractual chaplain at Ypsilanti Regional Hospital and volunteered many additional hours there as well.

"That was one of the richest aspects of the ministry I've been able to afford through the years because these are people some people are uncomfortable with," she said. "I was uncomfortable with the patients and they were comfortable with me, and therefore we could interact in a way that unless you are privileged to be comfortable with them, you can't interact. Most people only need someone to whom they can talk freely and know their confidences will not be violated and they will not be rejected. That's true for anybody."

Ward encourages others to become volunteers.

"Volunteering offers you the opportunity in some measure to make a positive difference," she said. "If you believe in a movement — whether it's political, or school or faith-related — if you believe it would make a difference for the better in the world in which you live. Whatever it is that you see that has value for our world, there isn't anything more satisfying than to feel you've had even a small part in making life better for other people."

"For my husband and me, for whom the Christian faith has profound meaning, it expresses truth at its most profound level. We want to live in a way that might share its value with other people."

One of Ward's favorite prayers is one she read in a book years ago: "God, keep me alive as long as I live."

She believes volunteering has contributed much to her life and credits her husband for encouraging her to be so active.

"He was concerned more with what we as a team could put into life than what we could get out of it in terms of material gain," she said. "Because he had a very fulfilling kind of vocation, I think he realized that I needed to be involved in the same kind of giving; the same kind of life expression in the sense of fulfillment."

Successful tournament was a community effort

In Ypsilanti, we have a great deal to take pride in, within our community.

The community can take pride in having a successful Gus Macker weekend May 21-22. The success of the event was due to the commitment and cooperation of many within our community: the many volunteers, the assistance and cooperation with Eastern Michigan University, the local governmental support and of course the cooperation and participation of the local law enforcement agencies. The participating police agencies are to be commended for an outstanding job.

The success of this event proves that our community believes in itself and is proud of its heritage and diversity. Many communities would not have pulled together the way our community did to bring this event back.

The community volunteers, leaders, churches, businesses and civic organizations demonstrated that Ypsilanti is a progressive, diverse and proud com-

I want to commend the players in the Macker for their outstanding sportsmanship and the spectators for helping make this year's event one to take pride in.

Hats off to Huron Services for Youth and the Visitors & Convention Bureau for meeting the challenge. I hope to see all of you back next year for a more successful Gus Macker weekend. Have a great summer, and remember if you are driving, don't drink and always "Buckle Up."

Fires strike twice in Ypsi Township

By TIM OMARZU
Press Staff Writer

A house fire and a blaze in an apartment's kitchen kept Ypsilanti Township firefighters busy Sunday.

Firefighters responded at 11 a.m. Sunday to a house fire in the 1000 block of Gault Street. The fire started in the basement, came up the stairs and into the kitchen, fire Capt. Phil Caldwell said.

When firefighters arrived, they found Bob Millsbaugh Jr., a retired township firefighter, and Larry James, an off-duty township firefighter, already fighting the blaze with garden hoses.

Millsbaugh and James noticed the blaze as they were working on a car in a garage across the street, Caldwell said.

"Bob took the bull by the horns," he said.

Firefighters rescued a pet hamster from the fire and tried to revive it with oxygen, but it died, Caldwell said.

The fire did about $40,000 damage to the house.

The township hadn't finished investigating the blaze Sunday, but it looked to be an electrical fire, Caldwell said.

The family living in the house was away at church when the fire broke out, he said.

In another incident, a woman in her mid-40s was taken to Beyer Hospital for treatment after a kitchen fire broke out in her apartment in the 1000 block of West Michigan Avenue.

The Fire Department responded to the blaze at 12:20 p.m., after neighbors reported it.

The fire did about $4,000 in damage, Caldwell said.

the Michigan Municipal League with good references and recommendations.

"I just feel he's going to work out great," Silvenis said.

Charles was city manager of Monroe until June 13. He wouldn't discuss why he left.

"We had a parting of ways," Charles said.

Charles will continue to live in Monroe and commute to Belleville. He is married with two sons — one a senior in high school and the other a graduate student at Eastern Michigan University.

Charles, 53, was born in Wichita, Kansas. He graduated from Wichita State University with a master's degree in political science and a specialty in public administration. He also attended Tulane University in New Orleans. He moved to the Michigan area two years ago when he applied for the city manager position in Monroe, and kept that position until recently.

Charles began his career part time as an assistant city manager in 1963 in Wichita. He has worked full time in city manager positions since 1965 starting in Newton, Kansas, and later in Shreveport, La.; Lincoln, Neb.; Ankeny, Iowa; Agawam, Mass.; Easthampton, Mass.; and Monroe.

He said a manager must tailor himself to the situation at hand to manage a city effectively.

"You deal with every situation differently," Charles said. He said he wants to deal with Belleville's issues, not other cities' issues.

"I think I have the flexibility and experience to deal with them," Charles said.

Charles said he's used to coming into crises, and added that feels he can deal with the emotions behind Przygocki's death.

"I've been in very, very volatile situations," Charles said.

He cited the Detroit Edison Co. Enrico Fermi plant dumping in January near an outlet in Monroe as his most recent difficult situation.

Charles said he is not getting involved with the investigation of city employees and questions surrounding Przygocki's death.

"That's not for me to deal with," he said. Charles said he met Przygocki once and didn't know him personally.

He said no matter what the issues are in Belleville, he realizes the importance they have to the residents.

"The diversity of experience and resources I have at my disposal, as well as what I don't know, will allow me to deal with issues here," he said.

"Probably one of the most valuable things to know in this business is you don't know everything."

Silvenis said Charles has gone to several Belleville meetings and is learning about the area quickly.

"I think he's getting used to the community," Silvenis said.

Charles recognizes the transition will take some time.

"This week and next week are going to be a learning period," Charles said.

coven members became visibly upset. Poe said when the officer realized it was an important religious service, the officer apologized.

Later Poe showed police his religious credentials — a certificate he received from California stating he is a legal reverend. Poe said he was allowed to close the ceremony once the officers thought the situation was secure.

Poe said he could have accused the officer of violating his civil rights for interrupting the service, but realizes the officer was probably uncomfortable in an unknown situation and apologized later.

"We were trying not to stir things up," Poe said. "I'm more concerned with not being harassed anymore."

Sumpter police Sgt. Wanda Elden agreed with Poe that the officers' response was based on what they were told. She said Poe has a right to practice his faith.

"He's entitled to practice his religion," she said.

Witchcraft, or "Wicca," has been recognized through the military, state and federal governments, mostly through lawsuits protecting the worshippers' freedom of religion, Poe said.

Several pagan organizations already have stated they won't tolerate discrimination and harassment.

The Pagan Anti-Abuse Resolution, drafted by pagan groups six years ago, states that pagans and Wiccans do not believe in the Christian devil "Satan," and believe firmly in not harming anyone.

"We will not tolerate slander or libel against our churches, clergy or congregation," the resolution states, and they will take legal action when necessary.

The Crafters Coven, to which Poe belongs, consists of about 15 members from the Detroit, Ypsilanti and Belleville areas. Poe, a former Lutheran, said he has always considered himself spiritual but questioned "inaccuracies" in the Bible as a youth. He started calling himself a Wiccan about five or six years ago, but has always been interested in the occult.

"To us it's a lifestyle," Poe said. "We're doing this because it's what we believe in."

Poe said his neighbors don't understand Wicca, but the only problem they have experienced besides the June 11 interruption was when his 11-year-old daughter got into fight on a bus when boys teased her. Poe said the school principal told the boys to stop.

Poe said the coven sometimes has ceremonies in natural surroundings such as parks to be closer to the members' belief in nature. He said they usually tell park rangers before they do ceremonies to avoid problems.

Poe said the word "Wicca" comes from "wic," the Anglo-Saxon word for wise. He said witches used to be the wise people of villages, with knowledge of herbs. Later in history, the witches had authority problems with the church men in the village, which eventually led to persecution.

"Basically we're nature worshippers," he said. "We respect nature, respect the woods."

Poe emphasized Wiccans don't want to do harm to others because they respect life and believe in karma — anything that you do to someone else will come back to you threefold.

During a religious ceremony, they draw on the ground to mark sacred space. He said members are not forced to do anything they do not want to do or that would be bad for them.

"The circle is supposed to be a safe place," he said. "If someone's going to be doing harm, they're not Wiccan."

The pentacle Poe wears is a symbol of his faith, not a satanic symbol it is often associated with. The five points of the star represent the five elements in nature — earth, air, water, fire and spirit.

Since Wiccans do not believe in Christianity, Poe said Satanism has no meaning for them. But Poe said he does like to watch Christians partake in old pagan customs, such as the Yule log and Easter egg hunts.

Poe said many surprising similarities exist between Christianity and paganism. He looked in a biblical dictionary for the definition of a witch, and found it described many of the miracles Jesus performed — controlling weather, healing the sick, raising the dead, communicating with the supernatural.

"He's one of the greatest witches that ever lived," Poe said. "Christ had his way to the divine. I have my path."

Fest

he said. "We had two serious, knockout New Orleans artists Friday night. Even though it rained, people danced in the mud. It was like Woodstock."

The skies were still overcast Sunday afternoon, but that didn't seem to bother those dancing to the Sun Sounds Orchestra, a 13-piece jazz ensemble from Detroit.

"It's great. This is fantastic, but only if you dance," said Akilesh Pandey, a student at the University of Michigan Medical School.

This year's crowd was larger than last year's, said Jim Dulzo, Frog Island's artistic director.

He estimated that 3,700 people showed up Friday and Saturday. He acknowledged the rain keeps people away and hurts the festival to some degree.

"Ever since we've expanded to three days we've always had rain, and we've always lost a tiny bit of money," Dulzo said.

But he said Frog Island is in no danger of disappearing.

"This festival is too loved by too many people to be in danger," he said. "I think this festival will be here as long as people want it to be."

The upbeat crowd makes the festival popular with top-flight musicians, Dulzo said.

"If you've got a crowd that's open to the music and is really positive it can really help a band," he said. "I defy you to find bands that are better than these."

Perry: Women, warships working out well

Simpson won't plead insanity, lawyer says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson will not plead insanity to charges he murdered his ex-wife and her friend, and has an alibi for the night they were stabbed to death, his lawyer said Sunday.

F. Lee Bailey, who recently joined Simpson's high-powered defense team, said prosecutors are pinning much of their case on the results of DNA tests from blood samples. The tests could either help clear Simpson or link him to the slayings.

"If the DNA comes back and is not a match then the police had better get busy opening the investigation they may have prematurely closed," Bailey said on CNN's "Late Edition."

Simpson has been charged with murder in the June 12 slayings of Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman. He has pleaded innocent. His lawyers have said Simpson was at home when the two were killed outside Nicole Simpson's home.

Alan Dershowitz, another famed lawyer who has signed on to defend Simpson, last week said that Simpson's likely defense would be insanity.

"He got sucked in ... that all the evidence that the DA leaked and you people published was true," Bailey said on the CBS news program "Face The Nation." "He is outraged to now find out that it is now admitted that it doesn't exist."

ON BOARD THE USS DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER (AP) — The integration of women on one of the Navy's largest warships is working so well it will be a model for putting women on nearly all combat ships, Defense Secretary William Perry said Sunday.

"It's past the experiment stage. It's working and it's working well," Perry said after spending the night on this nuclear-powered behemoth, the nation's first combat ship to have women assigned full-time to its crew.

There are about 100 women on the Norfolk, Va.-based aircraft carrier, with 500 scheduled to join before it begins a six-month deployment in the Mediterranean in October.

The women will include combat jet pilots, cooks, bomb handlers and military police, ranging in age from late teens to mid-30s.

The ship — a floating airport with a 6,000-person crew — was conducting training exercises off the coast of Puerto Rico in preparation for its mission when it hosted Perry.

"I commend each of you for your maturity, your competence, and your can-do attitude in tackling this truly historic first," Perry told 2,000 assembled officers, sailors and Marines in the ship's hangar bay. "You have set high standards for all of those who follow you."

During several hours of briefings with crew members, Perry said, he'd "seen no evidence of any problem that can't be ironed out."

Perry said the ship has successfully built separate quarters for men and women, but a problem still exists with putting women on submarines, given their limited space.

"But there's no reason why it can't be done, and indeed it will be done, on board all the other surface ships of the Navy," Perry said.

Seven more combat ships are to take on female crew members this year. Women already serve on more than 60 non-combat ships.

Capt. Mark Gemill, the ship's soft-spoken, 6-foot-2 commander, said he dislikes the term "experiment" regarding female crew members.

"The Navy doesn't need experiments with women at sea. We know how to do it and we know how to handle the issues," he said, noting that women have served on noncombat ships since 1978.

Gemill captained a supply ship, with women on its crew, that sailed to the Persian Gulf twice during the war against Iraq.

Even the most emotionally charged issues, including sexual relations and sex harassment, don't rattle him.

"Sexual activity (among crew members) is not helpful for good order and discipline. ... That doesn't mean people can't be friends. ... Some intensely emotional relations will develop. Is that bad? I don't think so, but there may be a boundary where it might be bad for good order and discipline. And we do have good common sense," the captain said.

Pregnancies have been no more of a problem than people who leave work with broken arms, he said.

The process is working, he said, because women are being brought on board as jobs open up, and men aren't being pushed off to make room for them.

Yet such a revolution still has its uncertain moments, particularly in light of the Navy's searing experience with the Tailhook sex abuse scandal and many male service members' uncertainty about how to act around women in their once-sacrosanct workplaces.

Lt. Cmdr. Jan Hambe, 35, who boarded the ship in March, recalled nearly tumbling onto a male officer as she learned to get around on the ship's steep staircases.

The officer instinctively turned to help but stood back, afraid to touch her, when he saw she was a woman, Hambe said.

She regained her footing and laughingly reassured her colleague, "I'd rather be groped" than suffer a broken leg, she said.

U.S., Aristide reach impasse on refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clinton administration efforts to discourage Haitians from trying to flee the country by boat are encountering stiff resistance from deposed President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, causing strains between the two camps.

U.S. officials are worried that a mass exodus of Haitians could overwhelm facilities the administration has set up on a ship docked off Jamaica where fleeing Haitians can make their claim for political asylum.

But Aristide opposes any effort to dissuade Haitians from leaving. He also opposes the U.S. policy of repatriating Haitians who do not qualify for refugee status.

"We cannot send them back to Haiti because it is a house on fire," Aristide told a gathering here Thursday night, alluding to reports of widespread repression by the Haitian military.

Since U.S. officials began processing Haitians at a U.S. Navy hospital ship docked off Kingston over a week ago, 194 have been interviewed and 52 asylum claims have been approved, a rate of almost 30 percent. Most of those whose claims were denied have been repatriated.

On a related issue, an Aristide aide, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, accused officials of the State and Defense departments Friday of trying to sabotage an agreement under which the Pentagon would beam messages from specially outfitted aircraft to Haiti's military and its citizens.

The messages from the so-called "radio station in the sky" would be aimed at laying the groundwork for Aristide's return to Haiti and at provoking opposition to the military-led regime.

The Pentagon wanted the messages to include an appeal to Haitians not to flee the country. Aristide objected and received assurances from senior administration officials that his wishes would be respected.

But several news accounts last week quoted U.S. officials as saying that Aristide had lost the argument. Aristide responded to the news stories by issuing an angry statement last week blasting U.S. policy toward boat migrants as a "cynical joke."

An Aristide aide, speaking on the condition of anonymity, on Friday said it is "not clear whether the White House has sufficient control over the government to be able to go forward with this program because there are a number of people in the Pentagon and the State Department who appear to be trying to torpedo it."

The Ypsilanti Charter Commission is making a final effort to get public comment on its proposed revisions to the Ypsilanti City Charter.

At 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, the commission has scheduled a final public hearing on the document before it is sent to the Michigan attorney general's office for legal review and evaluation.

Under the current schedule, the commission would like to place the charter before the voters in the November election.

The nine members of the commission have spent a year looking at the Ypsilanti city charter and debating revisions that it believes will improve the quality of government in Ypsilanti.

Throughout the process, the commission has sought public comment on what it has proposed and it has discussed the charter and proposed revisions in an open manner.

Now that it is approaching the end of its task, the commission once again is asking the public to comment on what it has proposed.

This document is an important one. It is the basic framework on which the Ypsilanti city government operates, and the commission has made a number of significant changes in the charter it intends to recommend to voters.

It is important for those concerned with the charter to attend the public hearing Tuesday night and express their opinions to the panel before the charter goes to the attorney general's office for review.

Letter to the editor

Ellsworth is dedicated to Superior

Family obligations have made it necessary for Vivian Ellsworth to resign her elected position as clerk (a full-time position) and seek the position of trustee of the Superior Township Board (a part-time position).

The Caviston family would like to thank Vivian Ellsworth for her devotion to the township during her tenure as clerk. She is dedicated to the township and in her striving for excellence for the legal registered voters of Superior Township she has served us well. Superior Township is a better place to live because of her service and commitment.

It would be a shame to lose the insight Vivian Ellsworth possesses by not supporting her change to the position of trustee, and Colleen O'Neil's (a sitting Township Trustee) appointment to Superior clerk. Supporting this change seems like a natural progression in helping facilitate a trusted, valued employee.

A health care compromise

Despite growing evidence that the national health care debate that government-mandated universal coverage is headed for the morgue, President Clinton is defiant about its prospects for survival.

If the choice is between universal coverage and no bill, we should all hope he comes out of denial soon. Clinton is, after all, the Great Compromiser, so there's room to believe that he won't let stubborn pride stand in the way of achieving reform.

But in his State of the Union speech in January, the president brandished his "veto pen," saying he wouldn't sign a health care bill that didn't provide everyone guaranteed coverage.

Today's best political wisdom says that the Clinton plan will not pass in Congress. A more moderate variation can pass, however. Pragmatism says we should make the reforms that are possible now, and come back for the rest later.

Universal coverage is an important reform, but it threatens to scuttle other reforms, including portability of insurance and no exclusions for pre-existing conditions. Any bill should also increase the number of Americans covered, control costs and preserve quality and choice. Clinton will be reviled if he holds out unsuccessfully. Instead, he should work with congressional leaders to fashion a realistic approach to universal coverage.

In the short run, moving toward that goal is better than standing still. In the long run, if other measures fail to achieve universal coverage, it can be mandated.

Congress is talking about "triggers." A "hard trigger" would automatically impose universal coverage or would give the president power to start it at some date, say Jan. 1, 1998. A "soft trigger" would give Congress the power.

There is no doubt that universal coverage should remain the primary goal of health care reform. But political reality can't be wished away. Clinton's continued defiance is counterproductive. Full reform is not going to come in one fell swoop.

Cable comeuppance

When that astute business organization the U.S. Congress decided to regulate cable TV in 1992, critics warned that the meddling would cause programming cutbacks. Now the chickens have come home to roost: The programs being cut back are those starring Congress.

In the last year, C-Span and C-Span 2 — two channels that carry congressional debates, policy speeches and such — have been curtailed or axed by cable systems serving 4 million Americans. The reason? The cable act forced companies to add local broadcast channels. To make room for them, the firms had to drop existing channels. And the C-Spans, economically speaking, were the most expendable.

Whether it is more edifying to watch reruns of "Mr. Ed" or the real-time disquisitions of an Alphonse D'Amato or a Pat Schroeder is, of course, a matter of opinion. Still, C-Span gives many citizens their only window into Washington, and it's a pity when someone pulls the shade.

Meanwhile, thanks to their own regulatory enthusiasm and to viewer preferences, many preening Honorables are playing to a shrinking TV audience. They had better hope that Mr. Ed doesn't make it onto the ballot this fall.

OPINION

The real question in the Simpson case

When NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Chavis Jr. insisted that extensive media coverage of O.J. Simpson points to racism in this country, I had to wonder if he was serious.

When he said that nobody cared as much about serial murderer Jeffrey Dahmer he went a step too far.

"You didn't see the television cameras follow him all over the place," Chavis said, referring to Dahmer.

"There's a double standard of coverage. There's a double standard of justice. There's a double standard of how we're treated in America."

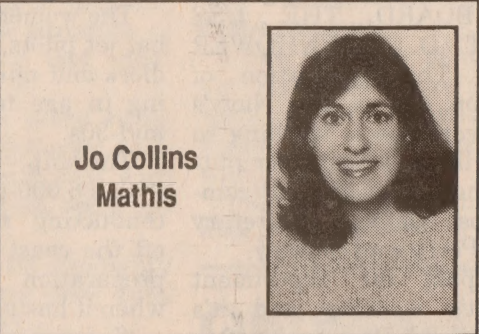

Few would argue that blacks have received equal treatment since they were brought as slaves to this country more than 300 years ago. Injustice has abounded.

But to compare the public's interest in O.J. Simpson to that of Jeffrey Dahmer — and then to chalk it up as racism — is ridiculous.

O.J. Simpson is a superstar. He is one of the best football players who ever lived. He is an actor and broadcaster. He is handsome, charismatic, rich and famous. He is accused of killing his ex-wife, Nicole Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Dahmer is a sicko cannibal from Milwaukee.

People idolize O.J. Simpson. Even those who believe he savagely murdered two innocent people are hanging signs on the gate of his mansion crying for his release. They cheered him on as he tried to escape police — not because they think he's innocent, but because they love him.

Jo Collins Mathis

Nobody did any such thing for Jeffrey Dahmer. Before his nauseating crimes became public knowledge, nobody ever heard of Jeffrey Dahmer. Nobody in his right mind wanted to hear about Jeffrey Dahmer.

When Chavis says we are more interested in reporting the Simpson case because he's black, he forces some of us to wonder if he is searching for reasons to cry "Racism!"

If there hadn't been so much media attention directed at Simpson, would he have said that was racist, too? Would he have asked: "Why doesn't anyone care about O.J.? Is it because he's black?"

Had this been a white superstar charged with murdering two blacks, we would have been just as interested. Had all three been black, or all three been white, we would have been just as interested.

This is not a racial issue.

What it is, hopefully, is an issue that will bring more attention to the nation's most common crime: Domestic violence.

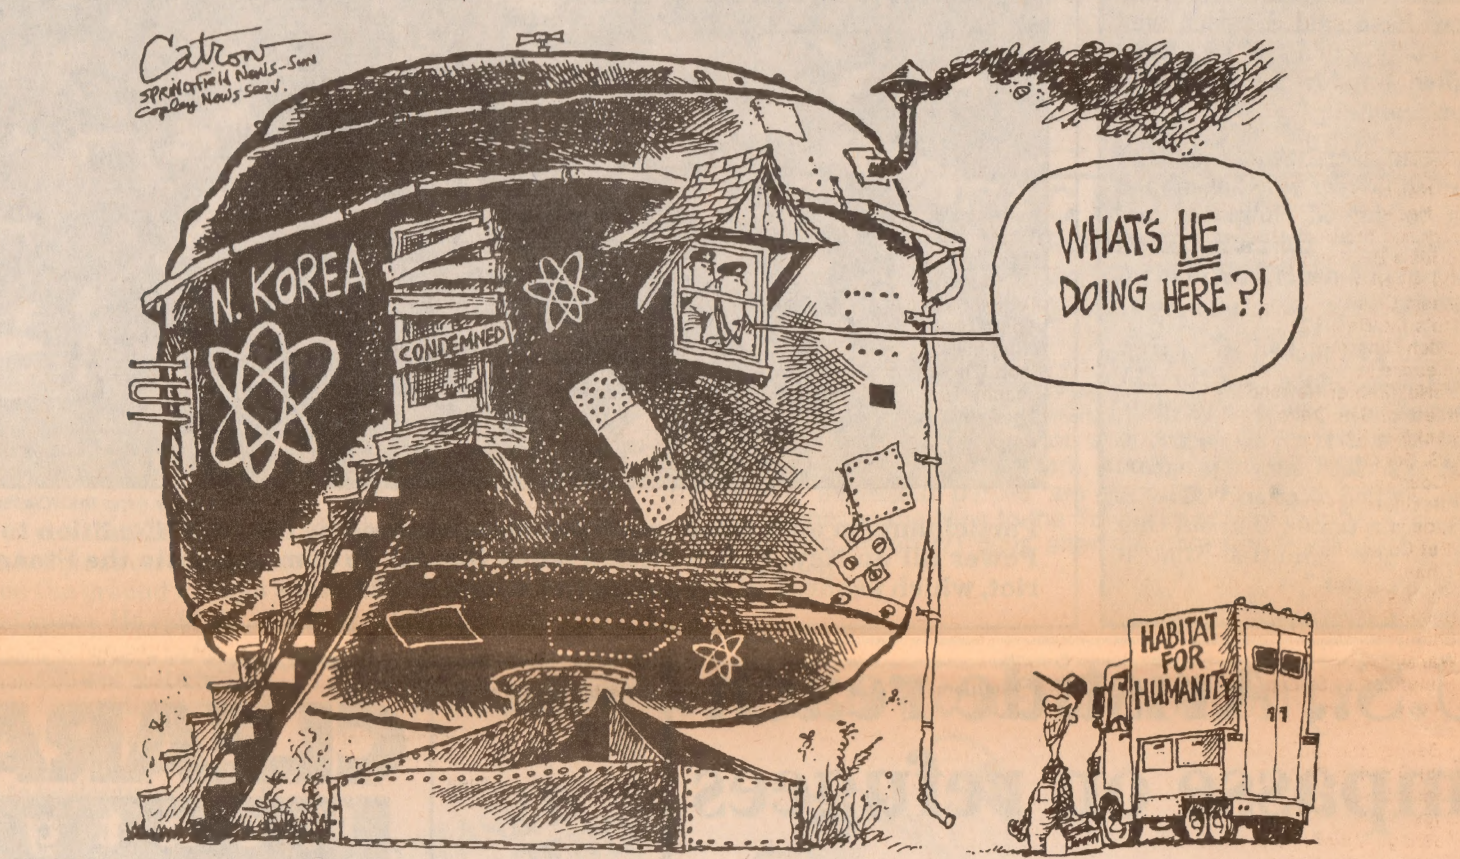

Nicole Simpson called police to report abuse at the hands of O.J. Simpson nine times. Seriously injured in one of those episodes, Nicole Simpson pressed charges. Yet Simpson never spent a minute in jail. This superstar/wife beater received probation and community service — which he spent helping out at a charity golf event.

I've heard several people now pose the same question: The guy had everything. Money. Talent. Good looks. Fame. How in the world could he have thrown it all away for a woman?

The question is not: How could someone throw all that away for a woman?

The question is: How could someone snuff out the lives of two innocent human beings?

Interest groups healthy for democracy

By BRIAN DICKINSON

We do not have to be alone now and then, like Garbo, but we Americans also tend to be a nation of joiners, celebrating our differences even as we find strength and promise in national union. These days we seem to be hearing more emphasis than usual on the differences that divide us, and it is worth asking what this may mean.

We are all Americans, or so the authors of civics textbooks used to declare. Wherever our grandparents hailed from, whatever our native tongue or color, we were encouraged to consider ourselves Americans first, last and always.

It was an uplifting vision, this "e pluribus unum" business. It inspired immigrants, provided politicians with rhetoric and allowed a young nation to strike a noble pose.

This unification ideal carried enough truth to be credible. But it also was something of an illusion, born of wishful thinking, and at times our separateness, or our emphasis on differences, has threatened our sense of oneness. We are churning through such a period right now, with many people defining themselves along more and more specialized lines.

We see not only groupings along traditional divisions — religious, ethnic, academic, political — but along different and often cross-cutting lines — gender, age, geography, lifestyle. We almost seem to delight in defining ourselves in the narrowest terms, or by the smallest identifiable group.

About all that these groups have in common is their particularity. Each has a set of values to transmit and a constituency to appease. Each has a political agenda that brings it into competition with other groups (for political status, public acclaim, government grants and so on). Many have succeeded in developing a body of "rights" to be advanced.

Much of this dynamic, of course, is familiar in any advanced democracy. People of like mind band together to advance their interests. Far from deserving rebuke, such concerted activity forms the heart of democracy. It's how things work. What makes the present situation so striking is that the separateness is making itself felt just when the unifying forces are under stress.

America has shown at best a muddled sense of direction in the post-Cold War world. Its economy, while robust, offers young people fewer jobs with promising futures. Its cities are suffused with squalor, filth and danger. It governs with vast sums of borrowed money. Decisions on how to provide the underpinnings of a modern civil society — shelter, welfare, schools, medical care — throw its political system into near-paralysis.

Faced with disarray at the center, people will have more reason than ever to band together in small groups, to give their loyalty a local twist. From this angle, the picture of an America riddled with faction and in thrall to dreaded "special interests" comes as no surprise.

America from its start has been more by far than the total of disparate parts; but disparate the parts have surely been. Our antecedents made it so. Coming from many lands, making their mark but slowly on a largely empty continent, the first of our forebears banded together — in colonies, new churches, trading companies — for protection and pursuit of common goals. Their successors joined in labor unions, granges, lodges, parties, military posts and hyphenated American societies and clubs.

This penchant for joining and organizing, if not peculiar to America, flourished here because our wide-open new nation invited it, and our multi-ethnic populace encouraged it, and our lively young democracy held out rewards to those with organizing skill.

However people define themselves, they do so for a reason. In the case of America's liking for groups and labels that differentiate us, the reasons have been both honorable (boosting civic pride, self-esteem and job prospects in the case of groups that help new immigrants) and deplorable (racism, homophobia). Group membership and a group-conferred sense of identity — welcome support for individuals in any society — took on unusual power as the vast, braided, multi-hued new nation of America grew up.

Our knack for banding into groups — for defining ourselves as special — has helped to make ours a contentious and noisy land, true. But that same knack also has amplified the voices of millions who otherwise would not have been heard: blacks, Latinos, native Americans, Asian-Americans, women, gays, lesbians, the elderly, the disabled. Group strength has helped these many Americans immeasurably (and has made us a more tolerant society).

This is why I have a problem with the argument, frequently heard these days, that too many special pleaders are abroad in the land, too many labels and activists and pressure groups, always making demands. Sure, they challenge the conventional order, and this makes the conventional people squirm.

But this is one way — perhaps the best way — in which democracies can evolve to meet change. All politics is about dividing the pie, and any who felt short-changed on the initial serving deserve, at least the chance to make their case for change.

True, the scramble of interest-group politics in recent years has given rise to all sorts of claimed rights, some of them rather novel, some in direct conflict with long-established rights. The Tory may grumble — "What right do those people have, going around demanding their rights?" — but again, it is in no small measure the assertion of rights that has helped Western Civilization to advance. Go for it. Tom Paine, Rousseau, Luther and the bumptious barons who faced down King John at Runnymede would have approved.

Torme entertains at JVC Jazz Festival

Mel Torme's warm, smooth delivery delighted a Carnegie Hall audience at the annual JVC Jazz Festival in New York, where he has performed since 1972. He began with "Opus One," melted into the verse of "You Make Me Feel So Young," snapped his fingers for a quick tempo for "Three Little Words," with lots of scat-singing, then went to "Memories of You."

In "You Make Me Feel So Young," the 68-year-old Torme sang, "You know that age is just a number" then interjected "If I could really believe that."

Accident prompts McEntire to slim down

Reba McEntire says she has lost 20 pounds since an embarrassing accident while filming "The Gambler Returns" with Kenny Rogers three years ago.

"In one scene, I was supposed to hop on a horse from a wagon, and I was so heavy and uncoordinated, I fell off the horse," the country music superstar says in the July 2 issue of TV Guide magazine.

Her diet secret: to eat mostly fruit and shun fried foods.

"My favorite meal was fried hamburger patties with flour-and-milk gravy and biscuits and tons of butter and honey," she says. "Breakfast was my most fattening meal because I had pancakes with peanut butter and syrup on them. And jelly on top of that."

McEntire says she enjoys her career success, but sometimes finds it disconcerting.

"It's been a while since I've been to Wal-Mart," she says. "The last time I went, me and my son, Shelby, just got bombarded. I must be a bigger twinkle than I think I am."

revenues.

It's a job Smith has been handling himself since he was charged by the board to stop the company's billion-dollar losses in its car and truck business in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

"He's clearly been successful at getting the company out of the financial mess it was in when he took over," said Furman Selznick's Maryann Keller, an automotive financial analyst and author of two books that chronicled GM's struggles and quest for recovery.

With Smith's cost-cutting campaign and the surging demand for new cars and trucks, GM's North American operations made $511 million in the first quarter of 1994 and the unit is expected to finish the year in the black.

"Now he's going to start to make significant decisions about who will be on the front lines" and focus more on a strategic role, Keller said.

GM declined to comment about the expected management changes.

Wagoner joined GM's treasurer's office in 1977 and has moved through several financial posts before becoming director of strategic business planning for the former Chevrolet-Pontiac-GM of Canada Group in 1988. Less than a year later he became finance vice president of GM Europe (Smith was then president) and in 1991 was named president and managing director of GM's Brazilian operations.

Other anticipated reassignments on Monday's management shuffle include:

■ Promotion of J. Michael Losh, head of GM's sales and marketing operations, to replace Wagoner as chief financial officer.

■ Promotion of Robert Hendry, head of finance for North American operations, to take over Wagoner's role as chief of worldwide purchasing.

■ Marketing and advertising general manager Philip Guarascio, who joined GM nine years ago after 21 years with a New York advertising agency, might be named to replace Losh as vice president of sales and marketing.

Keller said the new assignments would give Smith a team that can help him continue the formidable task of changing GM's culture, but they do not promise immediate solutions to some of the company's toughest problems.

Competitive redesigns of many of GM's products won't be ready for production for two years or more, raising the unpleasant prospect that they might hit the market as the next automotive downturn arrives.

"General Motors had better get it act together to master product development in 45 months, or 40 months or less," Keller said.

The company ran into quality problems that slowed the launch of its 1994 product line, and there are rumors it is having trouble with the 1995 Chevrolet Cavalier, due out this year to replace an aging best-seller, she said.

Seniors

Estimates of the percentage of people over 60 considered alcoholics range from a low of 2 percent to a high of 15 percent. The higher figure was reported in a recent article in Modern Maturity, a monthly publication of the American Association of Retired Persons.

The National Institute for Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism estimates that 7 percent of the general population are alcoholics.

"We are seeing more seniors in treatment, and there is a greater awareness of treatment programs and recovery," said Patricia Pintar, who runs an elderly support group at Maple Grove Centers for Chemical Dependency in Oakland County's West Bloomfield Township.

When Pintar began the Maple Grove program two years ago, she said eight seniors showed up. Now she sees 11, and Maple Grove has started a second support group — with at least 10 seniors.

Those studying the issue have identified two types of elderly alcoholics: those who were heavy drinkers all their lives and sought treatment later in life, and those who drank moderately but increased their alcohol intake after retirement.

Edith Lisansky Gomberg, a psychologist at the University of Michigan Alcohol Center, said she has been unable to pinpoint what drives seniors to alcoholism, despite 15 years of studying the issue.

"I'm afraid that there are more unanswered questions than answered questions," Lisansky Gomberg told The Detroit News earlier this month.

Most experts say the number of senior citizens seeking treatment for alcoholism is likely to increase as the population ages.

"The numbers will grow as the baby boomers age, just because older people will comprise a larger segment of the population," said Ann Bradley, a spokeswoman for the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

Researchers believe it's more than a fear of aging that drives seniors to alcohol. Other causes might be:

■ A feeling of uselessness, often brought on by retirement.

■ Pain of physical ailments.

■ Loneliness because of the deaths of a spouse or friends.

Colleen Williams, senior operating director at the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency, said public awareness and publicity might encourage more senior citizens to seek treatment for their drinking problems.

"We think some seniors might be realizing they have a problem because there is more coverage about it," Williams said.

Robinson may skip NBA draft

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Glenn Robinson — expected to be the first pick in the NBA draft — may spoil the show as no-show Wednesday night. And he may not be alone in his protest.

The Milwaukee Bucks are expected to take the Purdue All-American. But Robinson might not be at the Hoosier Dome, his agent, Charles Tucker, told The Indianapolis Star in a story published Sunday.

The boycott would protest both the legality of the draft and a possible rookie salary cap, Tucker said.

"If he doesn't participate, Jason Kidd (California) and Grant

Hill (Duke) have also said they're not going to participate," Tucker said. "But I haven't fully made up my mind on that situation yet."

"I'm in the process of figuring out what I'm going to do and I'll figure that out by Monday. Right now, Glenn Robinson is not in the draft."

Bucks spokesman Bill King said the issues being raised by Tucker would have to be settled through collective bargaining between the NBA and the Players Association, and a boycott of the draft by Robinson would not affect the team's top selection.

"The draft will still be held on Wednesday regardless of whether players are in attendance or not, and the Milwaukee Bucks still hold the No. 1 pick in the draft," King said.

Robinson, Kidd and Hill are the three players the Bucks interviewed in preparation for using the top pick, King said.

Kidd and Hill are expected to go behind Robinson — one of them probably to the Detroit Pistons, who pick third in the draft — and Tucker said the absence of the top players would take some of the excitement out of the draft.

"The NBA makes a lot of money off the draft," Tucker

Patriots 6th in tourney

BUTLER, Pa. — Rain shortened tournament play through most of the weekend here, but the Ypsilanti Patriots made the most of their stay here as they finished sixth in the 26-team tourney.

The Patriots opened play Thursday with a 20-4 win over New Castle, Pa., then were washed out until Saturday, when they played three more games — a 13-0 win over Shaler, Pa., then a pair of losses — 3-1 to Washington, Pa. and 7-2 to Ohio Valley, W. Va.

The field went into single-elimination play Sunday and Post 282 won its opener with Lyndora, Pa., 5-1, but fell to Painesville, Ohio, 5-4.

In the playoff round Sunday, Adam Sokolove led the way by hurling a three-hitter for the win. Ralph Truitt helped at the plate with a pair of doubles and an RBI, while Ben Rhodes added a double and Brian Patriarche had a two-run single.

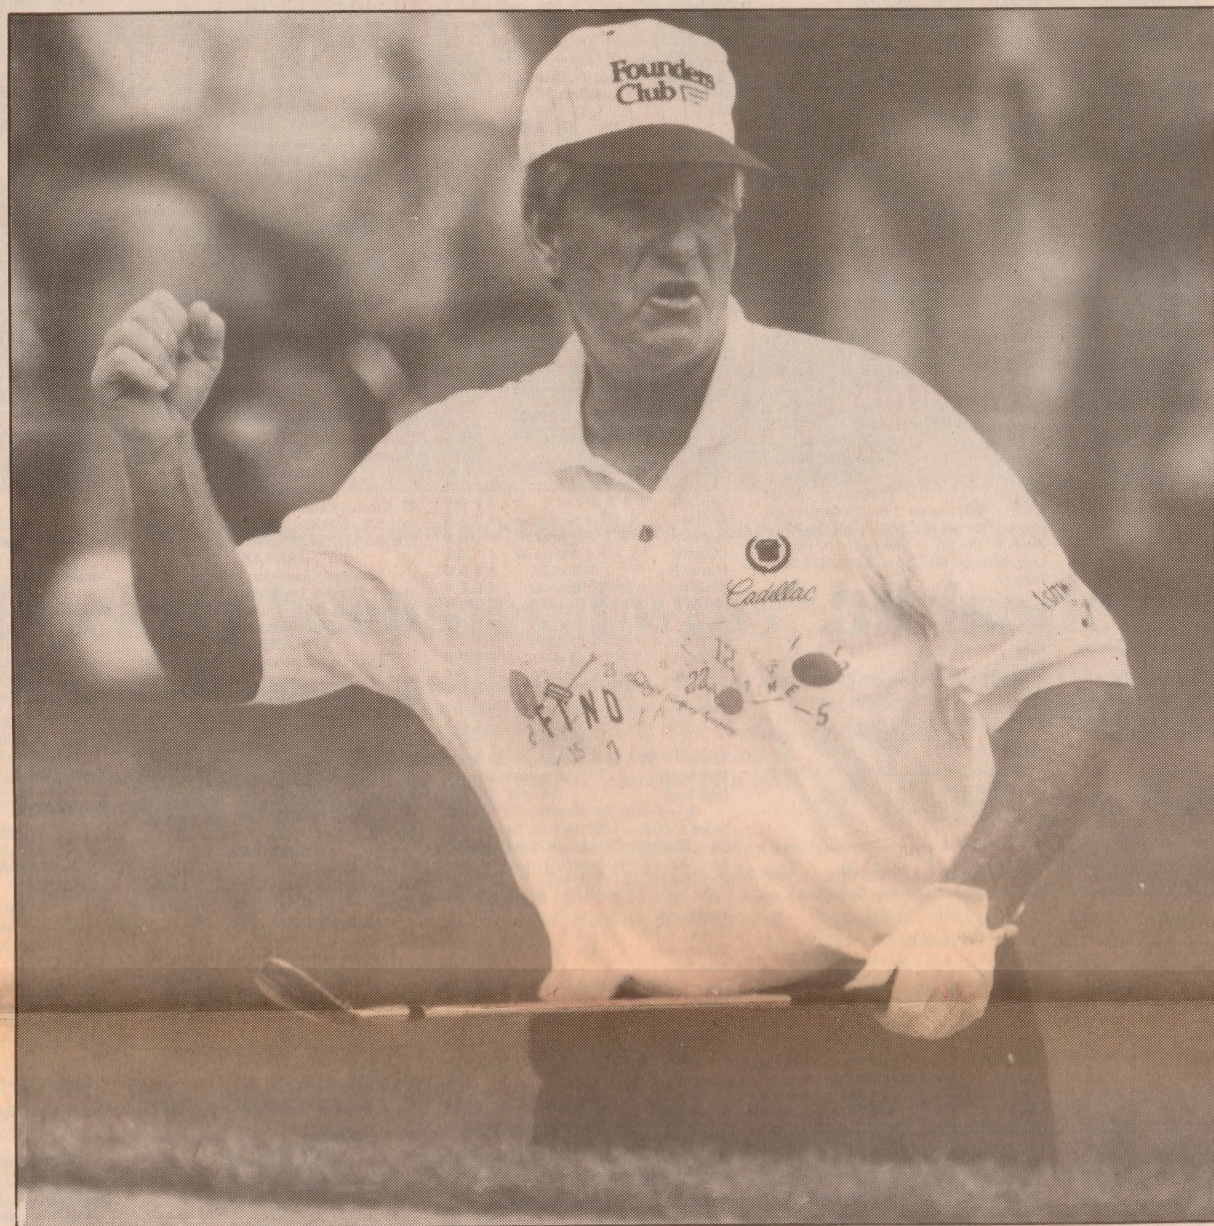

The Patriots cut a 5-2 deficit to 5-4 on a two-run double by Israel Hildebrandt in the fourth inning of the game against Painesville, but could come no closer. Patriarche added an RBI single.

In Saturday's play, Post 282 pounded out 11 hits in its win, while Jeremy Hill held Shaler to one hit. Ryan Hilobuk led the offensive attack by going 2-for-3 with a double and three RBI. Kevin Lambert was 2-for-3 with a double and two RBI. Sokolove was 2-for-3 with two RBI and Truitt was 2-for-3.

The Patriots struggled at the plate in the last two games Saturday. Billy Sinkule managed the only hit in the loss to Washington, while Hilobuk had a double and Andy Woodside, Rhodes and Sokolove singled against Ohio Valley.

Thursday's opener found the Patriots mounting a 19-hit showing. Rhodes had a pair of homers with four RBI, Woodside was 2-for-3 with a homer and three RBI, Hilobuk was 3-for-4 with a homer, Dave Brendum was 3-for-5 with a triple, Sokolove was 3-for-3 and Ken Stockton cruised to a TPC-Michigan record 17-under par to win by six strokes.

Stockton earns easy Senior win, then keeps eye on son

DEARBORN (AP) — It was strictly a family affair for Dave Stockton.

With his youngest son, Ronnie, carrying his bag, Stockton overwhelmed the rest of the field Sunday to win the Senior Players Championship. Then he hurried inside to see if his oldest son, PGA Tour rookie Dave Stockton Jr., would win the Greater Hartford Open.

A victory in Hartford would have made the Stocktons the only father-son duo to win PGA tournaments in the same week and the first to win the same tournament as senior won the GHO in 1974.

As it turned out, the younger Stockton finished in a four-way tie for third. (See Page 3B). His father couldn't have been prouder.

"I think it's awesome what he did," Stockton said. "It's just phenomenal. This is really going to help him. All he's needed was a good, high finish."

Stockton had such a large lead on all the challengers that he could easily afford to keep up with his son's progress. He repeatedly asked ABC-TV crew members for updates while working his way around the TPC of Michigan layout.

"I figured I had this tournament pretty much under control," Stockton said. "I figured it was OK to check on him a little bit."

He had that figured right.

Stockton, who won the championship two years ago, clinched the 1994 title with a 4-under-par 68 in the final round. That gave him a 17-under 271 total and a six-stroke victory over the rest of the star-studded senior field.

U.S. goalie Tony Meola is tended to after he wrenched a knee in the first half.

No miracles this time as Romania beats U.S., 1-0

By THOMAS D. ELIAS
Scripps Howard
News Service

PASADENA, Calif. — There were no miracles and no upsets at the Rose Bowl Sunday as Romania withstood a furious second-half flurry of shots by a frustrated U.S. team.

But even in defeat, the Americans won a new measure of soccer legitimacy.

Losing 1-0 to a favored Romanian side whose up-and-down performances in two earlier World Cup games left it in a desperate spot did little to dim the luster of what the Americans had already accomplished in a win and a tie against Colombia and Switzerland.

Out to prove their "miracle on grass" victory Wednesday over Colombia was no fluke, the Americans attacked from the start in 115-degree heat, trying to control the contest against an opportunistic, wily, veteran Romanian side that desperately needed either a win or a tie.

But time after time, the divine providence that seemed to smile on the Americans a few days earlier went the other way Sunday.

Like Colombia in its 3-1 opening-game loss to Romania, the U.S. had myriad opportunities to score in the early going.

They were frustrated first when midfielder John Harkes banged a 20-foot shot off the left post of the Romanian goal after a corner kick from the right side.

Moments later, forward

Eric Wynalda narrowly missed with a header from the right side off a pass from striker Ernie Stewart.

The Romanians had only five solid chances to score and they made good on one of them — enough, as it turned out.

The game's only score came in the 18th minute of play when Dan Vasile Petrescu sneaked a spinning ground ball past U.S. defender Paul Caligiuri and goalie Tony Meola. It was Meola's worst play of the tournament, the only time he's been caught even slightly out of position.

The Romanians then infuriated the partisan, American flag-wrapped crowd of more than 92,000 by stalling out much of the rest of the game, passing the ball back and forth for minutes at a time as the Americans watched and the fans whistled and booed.

But the Americans broke through the Romanian possession game as time wound down, seemingly inspired by a late save by Meola in the 65th minute, when he barely managed to tap a beautifully-placed free kick by Romanian star Gheorghe Hagi over the crossbar of his goal.

The U.S. had nine solid scoring chances in the game's final 15 minutes, and each was narrowly thwarted.

The closest miss came in the 83rd minute, when Stewart took a corner kick from Thomas Dooley on the left

Oakland routs Tigers, 10-5

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ron Darling saw something new Sunday — runs.

Troy Neel hit a two-run single and Mike Bordick's two-run double highlighted Oakland's seven-run first inning Sunday that carried Darling and the Athletics to a 10-5 win over the Detroit Tigers.

The A's, who have won 10 of their last 12, entered Sunday's game tied for last in the AL in runs scored. They had been averaging only three runs per game in Darling's 15 starts.

"It's nice to get the runs, of course," said Darling (5-9). "But I hadn't let it get me down. All I can do is worry about what I can control, which is my own performance."

"Still, everything worked out great today. And I was glad that we didn't relax after getting the big lead. We kept our concentration at a high level."

Terry Steinbach went 3-for-4 with a homer and Ruben Sierra had three hits for Oakland.

Darling allowed six hits over seven innings as the A's swept the three-game series and handed the Tigers their fourth straight loss.

"Ron deserved the runs today. He's had a heck of a time getting runs most of the season," said Oakland manager Tony La Russa. "We were able to get to Mike Moore before he got into his rhythm."

The Tigers grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first before the A's battered Moore (7-7) for six hits and seven runs in the first.

Rickey Henderson walked, stole second and scored on Geronimo Berroa's one-out single. Sierra's double brought in Berroa before an infield single by Steinbach and Brent Gates' bloop single loaded the bases.

Neel, then grounded a single to center, scoring Sierra and Steinbach. Bordick followed with a double off the wall in left center, driving in Gates and Neel. Bordick later scored on a passed ball to make it 7-1.

"It's frustrating when you make some of the pitches that you want to make but you can't get anyone out," Moore said. "Some of the balls weren't hit that hard, but they found holes. Of course, I made some mistakes, too, like the one to Bordick and the one to Sierra and the walk to the leadoff hitter."

Cecil Fielder hit his 17th homer for the Tigers in the fourth.

In the seventh, Sierra tripled and Steinbach hit a two-run homer, his ninth, to put Oakland ahead 10-3.

Scott Kalitta wins Western Auto Nationals

TOPEKA, Kan. — Scott Kalitta kept it all in the family Sunday as he joined his father, Connie, as the only two-time Top Fuel winner in the NHRA/Winston Drag Racing Series tour by taking the Western Auto Nationals here Sunday.

Kalitta beat Stevie Foster of Adkins, Texas, in the finals 4.824 to 5.006 — to claim the win and take over first place in the series point totals.

Kalitta also beat Kenny Bernstein to qualify for the finals, Don Prudhomme in the second round and Joe Amato in the first round.

Connie Kalitta won his opener against Pat Austin, but lost to Foster in the second round.

Atkinson chips to Michigan Amateur win

ADA — Brian Atkinson, taking advantage of a chip-in eagle, won the 83rd Michigan Amateur Championship Sunday afternoon with a 1-up victory over Kurt Hassberger.

Atkinson, who defeated Bob Sakocius of Grand Rapids 5-and-4 in Sunday morning's semifinal match, chipped in for an eagle on the 315-yard par-4 sixth hole to take a one-hole lead on the Valley Course at Egypt Valley Country Club.

Hassberger rallied from a two-hole deficit at the turn to tie the match after 14 holes. But a missed four-foot par putt on the 17th hole by Hassberger put Atkinson up.

Hassberger, 41, a seven-time club champion at Egypt Valley, was denied his bid to become just the seventh state amateur champion to win on his home course.

Hassberger, an attorney who lives in Ada, defeated East Lansing's Hank Schlissberg 2-up in Sunday morning's other semifinal match.

Kruk makes walk for cancer

PHILADELPHIA — Participants in a cancer survivors' walk welcomed a famous face to their ranks: Philadelphia Phillies first baseman John Kruk, a survivor himself.

Kruk, who underwent surgery for testicular cancer in March and endured a month of radiation treatments afterward, said he had a simple reason for joining the American Cancer Society's Relay for Life.

"Because I'm alive," Kruk said. "I survived it."

Kruk walked a lap around the St. Joseph's track with 40 other cancer survivors Saturday. Over the public-address system, the theme from "Chariots of Fire" spurred them on.

Magic reported to be part owner of Lakers

LOS ANGELES — Magic Johnson will become part-owner of the Los Angeles Lakers in a deal that could be finalized this week, according to a report published Sunday.

Johnson's stake in the team would probably be less than 10 percent, but he apparently would have a front-office role, the Los Angeles Times reported.

Lon Rosen, Johnson's agent, confirmed to The Associated Press that a deal was imminent but declined to name the team with which Johnson was negotiating.

"We're very close to making a deal," he said. "It's going to be announced in the very near future. Earvin will be involved in all aspects of the team, not just the basketball operations."

Chiefs' Barnett arrested on sexual assault charge

MILWAUKEE — Kansas City Chiefs wide receiver Tim Barnett posted $3,500 bond Saturday after being jailed temporarily concerning an allegation that he exposed himself in a motel.

Barnett, 26, was listed on a jail blotter Saturday as under suspicion of second-degree sexual assault, pending a meeting Monday in the Milwaukee County district attorney's office to discuss the complaint.

Marlene Perkins, a manager at a motel on the city's north-west side, said a 14-year-old maid reported she was forced from a second-story corridor into a room Friday afternoon.

Colombia wins, but bounced anyway

By The Associated Press

Colombia, stung by two startling first-round losses, salvaged some of its wounded national pride Sunday.

It was not enough to prevent Colombia from becoming the first team at the World Cup to be eliminated.

With goals by Herman Gaviria and Harold Lozano, Colombia beat Switzerland 2-0, avoiding the indignity of returning home without a win.

But the Colombians, a pretournament favorite, are headed home nevertheless.

Romania's victory over the United States meant a last-place finish for Colombia in Group A. The two top teams from each of the six groups advance, along with the four best third-place teams.

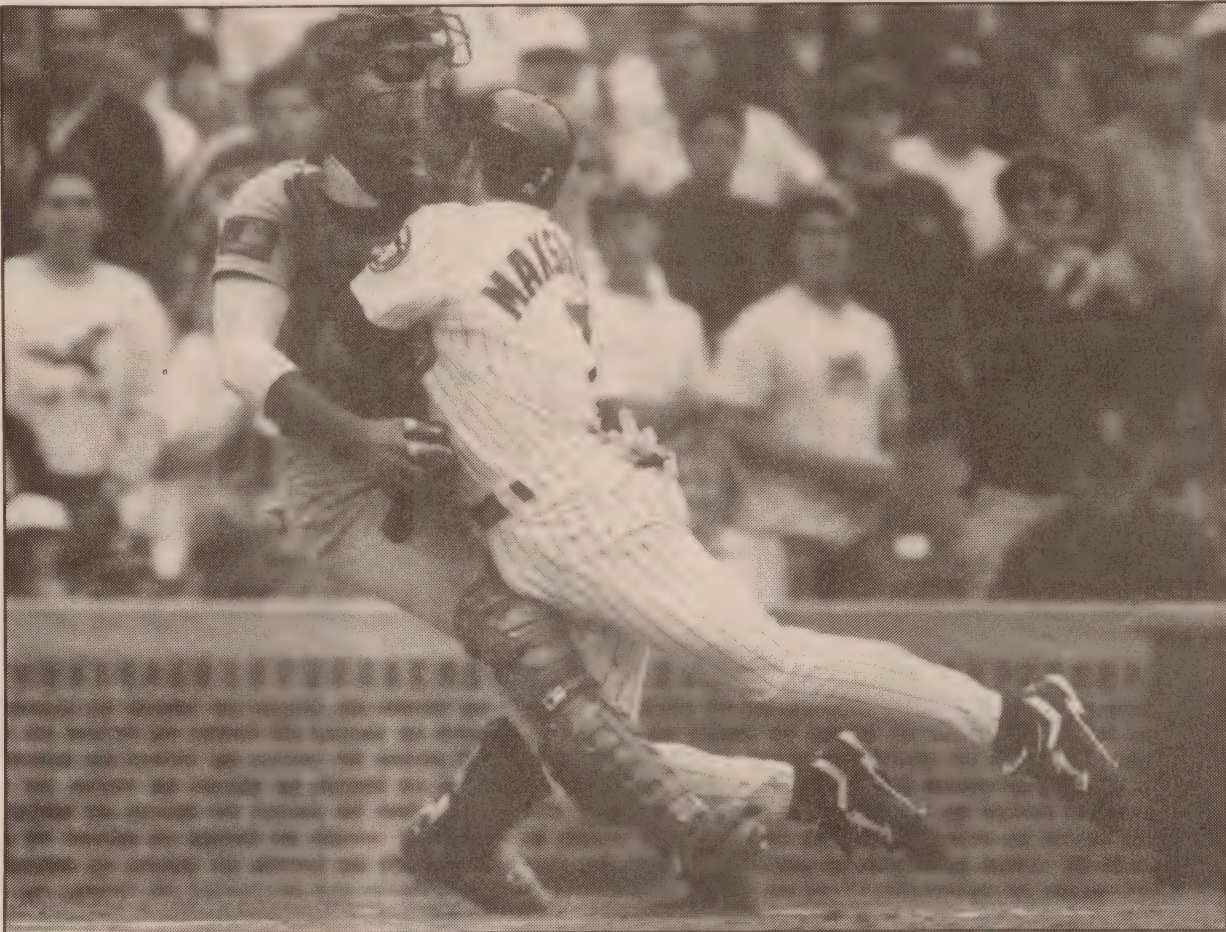

Carlos Valderrama, ineffective in Colombia's losses to the United States and Romania, reasserted himself as the offensive playmaker and helped put Switzerland on the defensive much of the game.

The Swiss had their hands full fighting off Colombian forays and had problems all day mustering counter-attacks that typically died in midfield.

Bulgaria 4, Greece 0: In six World Cups, Bulgaria never managed a victory. Then along came Greece.

Hristo Stoichkov scored twice on penalty kicks to pace Bulgaria to a 4-0 rout of Greece on Sunday. It was one of the most lopsided games of the tournament, matched only by Argentina's 4-0 rout of the Greeks last Tuesday.

Chicago's Mike Meksudian is out as he collides with Cardinals' catcher Terry McGriff.

Puckett becomes Twins' hit leader

By The Associated Press

Kirby Puckett became Minnesota's career hits leader and drove in three runs, leading the Twins to an 11-5 win over Kansas City.

Puckett had three hits, giving him 2,088 in 11 seasons with the Twins. He moved past Rod Carew, who had 2,085 hits in 12 seasons with Minnesota.

Yankees 12, Indians 11: Jim Leyritz and Mike Stanley homered and Jim Abbott won for the first time in a month Sunday as the New York Yankees blew most of an eight-run lead before beating Cleveland.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 4: Dave Nilsson drove in three runs, including the go-ahead score in the eighth inning as the Milwaukee Brewers edged Boston.

Angels 4, Rangers 3: Tim Salmon homered to lead off the eighth inning as the Angels handed Texas its 10th loss in 12 games.

White Sox 8, Mariners 7: Reliever Jose DeLeon struck out Jay Buhner with the bases loaded to end the game as the White Sox held on for their sixth straight victory.

Phillies 9, Braves 8: Darren Daulton went 3-for-3 with a three-run homer and scored four times as the Philadelphia Phillies held off the Atlanta Braves.

Marlins 6, Expos 1: Mark Gardner came off the disabled list to pitch 7 2-3 strong innings as the Marlins snapped a season-high six-game losing streak.

Pirates 7, Mets 3: Paul Wagner pitched eight shutout innings before tiring in the ninth, and Brian Hunter and Al Martin homered to lift the Pirates to their sixth straight win.

Cardinals 3, Cubs 1: Rick Sutcliffe gave up four hits over six innings for his first win over Chicago in nearly 15 years.

Giants 8, Rockies 1: Barry Bonds hit a pair of two-run homers and had five RBIs, and John Burkett pitched eight shutout innings to lead the San Francisco Giants past Colorado.

Dodgers 5, Astros 4: Brett Butler homered for the second straight game and also singled twice, driving in two runs as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Houston.

Reds 12, Padres 4: Hal Morris had his third four-hit game of the season and drove in the go-ahead run in a five-run sixth inning as the Cincinnati Reds beat San Diego.

Frost wins at GHO

By The Associated Press

David Frost held off Greg Norman for a one-stroke victory in the Greater Hartford Open on Sunday and frustrated Dave Stockton Jr.'s bid to make history with his father.

Frost shot a final-round 69 to set a 72-hole record at 12-under-par 268, one shot better than Norman, who finished birdie-birdie for a 69.

Stockton, who entered the final round tied for the lead at 11 under, shot a 72 and finished in a four-way tie for third at 271.

Dave Stockton won the Senior Players Championship at Dearborn, Mich., earlier Sunday by six strokes. The Stocktons were trying to become the first father-son combination to win a PGA event on the same weekend and the first to win the same tournament. The elder Stockton won the GHO in 1974.

Frost made just two bogeys over his final 31 holes, but one was Sunday on 17. The four-shot lead he had held after 16 was down to one but he made it stand up when he two-putted for par on 18. The 268 was the lowest score in the three years since the course at the Tournament Players Club at River

Highlands was renovated. Since 1991, the lowest score after 72 holes was defending champion Nick Price's 9-under 271 last year.

It is Frost's first victory on the PGA Tour this year and ninth of his career. He becomes the 24th different winner in 25 tournaments this year, with Price being the only golfer with two PGA titles this year.

Tied with Stockton for third were Corey Pavin, Steve Stricker and Dave Barr.

SHOPRITE LPGA CLASSIC: Donna Andrews overcame swirling wind and her own gremlins to score a two-stroke victory over fast-closing Michelle Estill.

Andrews tried to give the tournament away down the stretch when she bogeyed No. 15, double bogeyed No. 16 and bogeyed No. 17. After losing four strokes to par in three holes, Andrews held on to complete a 3-over-par 74 and finish 54 holes at 6-under 207.

She was two strokes ahead of Estill and three clear of Dottie Mochrie, Barb Bunkowsky, Caroline Pierce and Kim Saiki.

Estill, seemingly out of contention after a 77 on Saturday, tied the under-par record for a tournament round with a 6-under 65 on Sunday over the 6,235-yard, par-71 Greate Bay Country Club course. Pamela Wright shot a 6-under 64 in 1990 when the tournament, then known as the Atlantic City Classic, was played at the par-70 Sands Country Club.

Sampras says no easy foes for him at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Pete Sampras knows what you're thinking.

After marching through Jared Palmer, Richy Reneberg and Chuck Adams — none ranked higher than No. 35 — in the first week at Wimbledon, he draws anonymous Daniel Vacek to start the fourth round Monday.

More easy pickings for the defending champion and No. 1 seed?

No way, Sampras said after completing a rain-delayed 6-1, 6-2, 6-4 victory over Adams on Saturday.

"You probably never heard of him but he's extremely dangerous," Sampras said of Vacek. "I've played him before. I'm playing a guy who hit 30 aces. A couple of swings of the bat and you could be out. I'm going to have to be ready."

Vacek, ranked No. 51, owns a heavyweight serve that has produced 63 aces in three matches here. Sampras, whose fastest measured serve in the first week reached 128 mph, has 61 aces so far.

What's interesting is that their ace production seems headed in opposite directions.

After the traditional day off Sunday, Wimbledon has a full fourth-round schedule on Monday.

Nine-time champion Martina Navratilova, centerpiece of the women's draw after the elimination of No. 1 Steffi Graf, continues her farewell tournament, facing Helena Sukova. Other matches include Lindsay Davenport against Gabriela Sabatini; Lori McNeil, who eliminated Graf, facing Florencia Labat, and second-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario against Zina Garrison Jackson.

On the men's side, the schedule includes Michael Chang against Sergei Bruguera in a battle of former and current French Open champs, three-time Wimbledon champ Boris Becker against Andrei Medvedev, and qualifier Bryan Shelton against Christian Bergstrom as well as Sampras-Vacek.

Frost claimed the trophy with a one-shot win over Greg Norman.

Seniors

score ever on the Jack Nicklaus-designed course which opened in late 1990. Stockton set the mark of 11 under in 1992.

"My iron game was so good, I had a lot of short putts," Stockton said.

For the record, Jim Albus was second in the Seniors Players Championship at 11 under. Lee Trevino, Isao Aoki and Raymond Floyd all finished another stroke back.

But this day belonged to Stockton. He started the day at 13 under, five strokes ahead of his challengers. It was unlikely anyone could catch him.

"I don't know how realistic it was to think I could win the tournament when Dave had a five-shot lead," Albus said. "But the other thing is that Dave just didn't make a bogey. It's just not in his vocabulary, I guess."

Stockton sealed his title with two magnificent shots on Nos. 3 and 4, a 547-yard par-5, followed by a 210-yard par-3.

Stockton put his approach on 3 less than a foot from the pin and tapped in for birdie. Then he holed out from a greenside bunker on 4 for another birdie to go 15 under.

"To me, that was the turning point," Stockton said. "I got back the two strokes I lost when Jim birdied the first two holes. And even though he birdied No. 7 to pull within four, I was back in the game."

After missing makeable birdie putts on the two previous holes, Stockton removed his black and white baseball-style cap at No. 9 and drilled a 7-footer for another birdie. That enabled him to turn at 16 under.

Stockton's toughest moment came at No. 13, a 506-yard, par-5 with a slight dogleg to the left.

A hard rain was falling by the time Stockton reached the side and headed it about a foot over the Romanian crossbar.

But by playing the Romanians to a virtual standstill in a game the Romanians needed far more than they did, the Americans established themselves as one of the strongest third-place teams in the cup.

Even with the loss, the Americans will probably be the first U.S. team since 1930 to make the cup tournament's round of 16. They also wind up with four first-round points for their win over Colombia and their opening-game tie with Switzerland, two more than any other American team has ever piled up in a single World Cup competition.

Romania, which needed a win or a tie to stay alive in cup play, wound up the winner of the tournament's Group A and will now play its sudden-death, second-round game in Pasadena.

Second-round opponents for both teams still aren't certain, but after the game no one was losing sight of what the Americans already accomplished.

Said U.S. coach Bora Milutinovich, "I understand when a team loses, the comments are usually very negative, but I want to remind that we went for four points and now we have them."

"Today we lost against a very good team. The order we finished in may not be exactly what we wanted, but we will be all right. I'm not the least bit disappointed in the effort my players put forth. There is no reason for us to be sad. We won our four points, and we had our chances today."

Romanian coach Anghel Iordanescu also recognized what the Americans had accomplished. Basking in the championship of the four-team Group A, he pronounced the Americans "a very difficult opponent."

Milutinovich conceded that his team would have liked to continue playing in the Rose Bowl in the next round, as the Romanians now will, because it's close to their training base at Mission Viejo, Calif.

tee. The thick grass on the left side, at the knee of the dogleg, was where Tom Weiskopf had lost a ball during the third round.

"I'd like to hit a big drive there, but it's such a risk," Stockton said. "I steered it at times, but this is a course that demands that you do that."

Stockton, too, missed the fairway. But he drove into the right rough, which wasn't nearly as thick as that on the left.

"I was in the rough but, you know, if I hit it left there, I can make an 'X' and I'm out of it," Stockton said.

There would be no X's on this day.

Stockton punched a mid-iron safely onto the fairway, then used an 8-iron to flip the ball 22 feet from the pin. The curling putt slid into the cup for another birdie, putting Stockton 17 under.

Classic overkill, as it turned out.

Albus, who won the first championship after the tournament was moved from the Dearborn Country Club to the TPC in 1991, made an early bid to catch Stockton. Albus birdied three of the first five holes to get to 11 under, which left him only four strokes behind the leader at the time. He never got any closer.

Nicklaus, as only he can do, made a tremendous early charge, only to run out of steam on the back side. Nicklaus shot 31 on the front, turning at eight under. The charge continued with birdies on 10 and 12.

But Nicklaus pulled his drive on No. 13 left into a thicket of trees. His ball slipped into a hollow under some roots and was unplayable. After a drop, he slashed a mighty iron back onto the fairway and chipped within six feet of the pin. But his putt to save par slid just past the cup.

Rwandan leader vows to continue struggle

GYSENYI, Rwanda (AP) — Rwanda's prime minister talked tough on Sunday, saying his besieged government forces were growing stronger despite an arms embargo. He vowed to keep up the fight against Tutsi-led rebels.

The declaration by interim Prime Minister Jean Kambannada indicated the bloodletting that has killed at least 200,000 people in the last 10 weeks may be far from over.

Most of the victims have been ethnic Tutsi civilians butchered by militias of the majority Hutu tribe, which controls the government and army.

The warlike posturing marked a change for Kambannada, a former bank director who became prime minister when his predecessor was assassinated by extremist army troops shortly after the civil war began.

Clad in new camouflage fatigues with a submachine gun beside him, Kambannada spoke to journalists in a hotel room near scenic Lake Kivu.

He said although the rebel Rwandan Patriotic Front has taken two-thirds of this central African country, the rebels are not as strong as they appear and the government is not ready to reach a peace settlement.

"We are not going to negotiate on our knees with the RPF," Kambannada said. "We could sign a treaty today if it was right. But we know the RPF isn't as strong as international opinion thinks it is."

Kambannada suggested the government was imposing ways around the arms embargo funded by the United Nations in May, and said it would spend every last dollar to purchase weapons. He did not say where the weapons were coming from, or how they were entering the country.

"If we could get more supplies, we could put the RPF to flight in a few days," he said.

The death of President Juvenal Habyarimana, a Hutu, in a suspicious plane crash on April 6 touched off a wave of massacres that killed mostly Tutsis and moderate Hutus.

The rapid rout of the government forces by Tutsi-led rebels has stalled around the capital, Kigali, which the rebels have besieged but failed to capture. But they sent Kambannada and his government into flight earlier by taking the provisional government headquarters of Gitarama.

Kambannada said government patrols are penetrating into Gitarama. His claim could not be independently confirmed, but military observers believe that the 20,000-30,000 rebels may be spread too thin to hold all the territory they have seized.

In the capital on Sunday, rebels fired shells into the heart of the government-controlled area and prevented the evacuation of seriously wounded patients from an overcrowded hospital.

Shells fell within 50 yards of U.N. trucks loaded with 35 patients who were to be taken from the International Red Cross Hospital to King Faisal Hospital in rebel-held land.

The Rwandan Patriotic Front had agreed to the transfer of patients but was unable to contact its fighters to tell them to stop the bombardment, said U.N. military spokesman Maj. Jean-Guy Plante.

Frightened and weary, the 35 patients finally were unloaded and their stretchers placed on the floors of hospital corridors.

The hospital became even more crowded with the arrival of civilians and soldiers wounded by the pounding shells. Soldiers sped to the hospital in cars and trucks to deliver the wounded, witnesses said.

Panel says mosque gunman acted alone

JERUSALEM (AP) — Rejecting Palestinian claims of a conspiracy, an Israeli commission found Sunday that a Jewish settler acted alone when he killed at least 29 Muslims in a Hebron mosque.

The five-member panel then cleared the government and army command of any responsibility for the Feb. 25 blood bath, prompting charges by Palestinians and liberal Israelis that the six-week investigation was a whitewash.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin pledged to carry out the commission's recommendations, including improvement of security at the Tomb of the Patriarchs, which is sacred to Muslims and Jews.

Jews will be barred from carrying weapons at the site in the West Bank town, and Jewish and Muslim worshippers will be separated to prevent friction.

But Rabin said there were no guarantees that security forces could stop another massacre by a "Jewish madman who decides to open fire in one of a thousand mosques where prayers are held in the West Bank."

The commission appeared to accept the argument of army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Ehud Barak, who testified the massacre "hit us like lightning from a clear blue sky."

In its 338-page report, the panel said the army could not have predicted an attack by a Jewish extremist on Palestinians because intelligence reports focused on possible violence by Muslim militants against Jewish settlers.

"We do not believe that anyone can be blamed for not having foreseen the fact that a Jew would plan and carry out a massacre of Muslims in the Tomb of the Patriarchs," the report said.

The commission said the mosque gunman, Baruch Goldstein, could perhaps have been stopped had the full guard detail shown up at the tomb on the morning of the massacre. Five out of 10 guards were absent, including three who overslept. The panel left it up to the army to file disciplinary charges.

Goldstein, a physician who immigrated from New York, walked into the tomb dressed in his army reserve uniform and opened fire with a Galil assault rifle on rows of worshippers. He was bludgeoned to death by worshippers.

"The massacre ... was a base and murderous act in which innocent people bending in prayer to their maker were killed," said the report. "The massacre was one of the harshest expressions of the Jewish-Arab conflict."

The report said 29 Palestinians were killed and 125 wounded. Independent checks with hospitals and family members indicated 30 had died, but there was confusion over names from the beginning.

The commission determined that Goldstein was the lone shooter. It discounted testimony by Muslim worshippers that shots were fired from more than one weapon and statements by two army guards that suggested another man carried the weapon into the tomb.

In Hebron, Mayor Mustafa Natche said the report did not address the basic problems that allowed Goldstein to operate freely, namely the presence of 415 Israeli settlers among 80,000 Palestinians in Hebron.
